“Sharing what we have will contribute to a fairer world”
The Stavros Niarchos Foundation Co-President’s interview with Lakonikos Typos

The Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF) is evolving every day on a global scale. The Foundation’s philanthropic work includes thousands of endeavors in every corner of the globe, with the aim of making people’s lives better.

At the helm of the Foundation is a man with disarming honesty, sensitive.

without prejudice. Andreas Dracopoulos spoke to Lakonikos Typos about how much the pandemic changed our lives, about the lessons it has given us, about Vavvakaou, the House of Mosaics, the new General Hospital of Sparta, and also about what advice his late uncle Stavros Niarchos would give to young people.

Andreas Dracopoulos:

“Sharing what we have will contribute to a fairer world”

Usually, I do not mention my personal views when I do an interview, but this one is a bit different. The answers provided by the SNF Co-President gave me great food for thought and reflection. Mainly about what each of us can do—always according to our abilities—to leave the world a little better than we found it.

We need more people as sharp-witted as Andreas Dracopoulos. More people free in spirit who have set as their goal the creation of a more just world. We should follow his shining example.

How much has the world changed after the pandemic? Do you believe that it will be a positive change for humanity?

A very interesting and important question. At this point we can only guess what the exact changes will be down the road, but I do believe that any COVID-19-related changes will be deeper and longer than we may think now. A lot of it has to do with COVID-19 being the first-ever truly global pandemic/crisis, and it has affected humanity as we have known it in many ways and forms. And I also believe that some of the changes will be good and some might be bad, but the dust hasn’t settled yet. My hope is that we can use this global crisis as a lesson and an opportunity to regroup and try to improve both as humans and as professionals in whatever our field may be. COVID-19 did catch us with our pants down as a global society, and we need to improve!

How has the pandemic affected you personally?

Similar answer as per above, although it made me even more sure that life is short and we need to live every day to its fullest, work hard, give it all you have, be kind, be appreciative, and try as much as you can to stay away from toxic people and toxic situations. And also strengthened my belief that the more you have the more you should do and share to contribute to a fairer world for all.

Greeks have placed the Foundation, and also you, among the contemporary benefactors of our country. Do you think that in the future we will continue to see initiatives like yours, or that the “morality” of the new era will minimize such efforts until they disappear?

The fact that you even ask this question the way you do is worrisome; you would hope and expect that the former would be true but, (and you are right to ask it the way you do) I am afraid the latter could be the case. On the other hand “dum spiro spero,” and I would remain hopeful that more and more people will realize that the more one has, the greater his/her responsibility to contribute, in any way he/she can, to ensure a healthier and fairer world.

The Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF) has a multifaceted and diverse presence in Laconia. It is implementing perhaps the most important donation ever made to the prefecture, the design, construction, and outfitting of the New General Hospital of Sparta. What was it that persuaded you to make this great donation to the Laconian capital?

There is an old saying that “philanthropy starts in your own backyard,” in a good way, and it should, this is where we come from and we are honored that we can contribute to the social and medical infrastructure of our place of origin.

The Vamvakou Revival project, for the place of origin of the late Stavros Niarchos, is highly esteemed by the people of Laconia. How do you feel about the village coming to life again, thanks to your own actions?

We want to thank the team that is running the program, for the pathos with which they are doing it, their creativity and hard work. They are the ones with the dream and we are very happy we can help them materialize it. A great project which could become a real example to follow, globally.

What would be your advice?

Keep working hard… and then harder! and try to enjoy it as much as you can.

If Stavros Niarchos were alive today, what his advice be to young people?

Keep working hard… and then harder! and try to enjoy it as much as you can.

What would be your advice?

Similar: give it all you have, every day, and ABTTY (always be true to yourself).
